Poetry Box Set: Sacred Precinct & Easing into Dark: Poems about life, death, and living on (Contemporary American Verse) Jacqueline Kudler

Two books of verse by an American original, collected together for the first time

Mature and wise, replete with the pleasures of the natural world, Easing into Dark is a volume to savor again and again. -- David St. John

In The Sacred Precinct and Easing into Dark, poet Jacqueline Kudler explores the rich, hidden corners of memory, loss, lamentation, and joy.

Poetry. "This book is life in itself. Here, a close self-regard; there, a wider regard of the world--each poem precise, often scalpel sharp, always keen in its music, always wise. SACRED PRECINCT is a large book, every poem in it earned"--Gerald Fleming.

Easing into Dark

Poetry. Jacqueline Kudler's new collection of poems traces a delicate and tensile arc. Poignant, unafraid, and disarming in its evocation of the trajectory of one human life, EASING INTO DARK is a return to that life, and for Kudler such return is "a way of realigning memory," a longing not for the life un-lived but for the life lived: years growing up in New York, her engagement with imagination and nature, the death of her husband, and the aftermath: the sources of beauty and richness that remain.

"The power and consolations of family resonate throughout all of the poems in Kudler's moving and deeply reflective new collection. . . . Joy is generational and renewable, making the slowly encroaching 'dark' more tolerable and even, at times, something to honor. Mature and wise, replete with the pleasures of the natural world, Easing into Dark is a volume to savor again and again. —David St. John

Jacqueline Kudler is a teacher of memoir writing and literature at the College of Marin in Kentfield, California. Her poems have appeared in numerous literary reviews, magazines, and anthologies, and the first full-length collection of her poetry, Sacred Precinct, was published by Sixteen Rivers Press in 2003, and her second collection, Easing into Dark was released in 2012. Kudler was awarded the Marin Arts Council Board Award in 2005, and the Marin Poetry Center Lifetime Achievement Award in 2010. She lives in Sausalito, California.
