WARNING: There are SPOILERS below for earlier books in the series.

Josiah Trenchard is a renowned Captain in the United Worlds Space Navy. He's a no-nonsense, foul mouthed, alcohol fuelled action hero, but he has one problem that won't go away. Ever since he can remember, Josiah Trenchard's life has been manipulated by the clandestine organisation who are known simply as, the "Society". Their Mesh computer software has predicted a future where everybody dies. In their desperate attempt to prevent the extinction of the entire human race, the Society have deliberately caused wars, developed deadly weaponry, experimented on troopers and manipulated those closest to Trenchard.

Finally, Trenchard has their number one agent in his grasp, but Japanese assassin Aska Saito has also been manipulated by the Society and is looking for a way out. Having revealed much about the Society's darkest plans, Saito has agreed to take Trenchard to meet someone who he thought he had lost forever, murdered on Mars four years ago. Thrown together into an unlikely alliance, Trenchard and Saito must travel to a distant snow covered planet. Unknown to the two warriors, yet another circle of ancient and mysterious stone spheres have been discovered in a cave system, deep in the bowels of the planet. In their blind quest for wealth, the unwitting colonists have disturbed the stones and released a dark power that is completely beyond their control; a power which could kill every living soul on the planet.

Will Trenchard find his lost love? Who will Saito give her allegiance to? Will either of them survive to see Boxing Day?

'Twas the night before Christmas and all hell is about to break loose...
