this is a fiction based on facts. Selocta Chinnabee, the hero of the Battle of Talladega during the Creek Indian Wars, tells his own story of his life from the onset of the Creek Indian wars in 1813 up to his final night at a tavern in Talladega County in 1835. He tells his story to an acquaintance who retells the story for him after his death that night. From losing the love of his life in the first battle, to his struggle for peace between his red brothers and the white man, to the days leading up to the Trail Of Tears that the Indians would have to travel because of the white man's greed for their land. It is a tale of war and love.
